2. Background: The Senior Review Panel examined the performance of the Intelligence Community regarding the Soviet military presence in Cuba and on 30 April 1980 published its findings. A number of general shortcomings in the intelligence production process were identified as contributing to the difficulties observed in the Cuba/Soviet brigade problem. These same shortcomings were perceived as having the potential for causing similar difficulties in future intelligence problems, and consequently appropriate fixes were recommended by the SRP. These were discussed by NFIB at its 15 July 1980 meeting. As directed at that meeting, the accompanying report is submitted to describe Community progress towards implementing the SRP recommendations. The NIC and SRP have reviewed this progress report and concur. [REDACTED]
